This course examines the rise of human rights as an important issue in international relations. Topics will include an exploration of the nature of human rights and their origins, analysis of the uneven protection of human rights around the world, and different means through which the international community has sought to deal with gross human rights abuses. In particular, we will look at extended case studies of Rwanda and Argentina to illustrate the challenges in protecting human rights domestically and globally. Students are expected to have successfully completed PSC 231 - Intro to IR prior to taking the course.

Specifically, the course objectives are that the student complete the course with an ability to:

- Describe the nature of international human rights institutions and be able to explain at least two strengths and weaknesses.
- Explain at least three pitfalls to humanitarian intervention and be able to use them to analyze new, real-world situations.
- Identify the strengths and weaknesses of four approaches to addressing a legacy of human rights abuses and be able to use them to analyze new, real-world situations.

Course Requirements

Texts

The books are also on 2-hour reserve in Lied Library.

I also expect you to keep up with current events on a regular basis through a major international news source. I recommend you subscribe to The Economist (see www.economistacademic.com). Other good sources of information include The New York Times (www.nytimes.com), Financial Times (www.ft.com), International Herald Tribune (www.iht.com), Asia Times (www.atimes.com), and Le Monde (www.lemonde.fr). For developments more particular to human rights, see Human Rights Watch (www.hrw.org) and Amnesty International (www.amnesty.org).

Assignments

Research Papers (25 points each): You will write two approximately 10 page (12 page max) papers. The assignments are designed to have you apply lessons you have learned throughout the semester through a series of case studies to new, real-world human rights issues. You will need to do some background research as the basis for your policy discussion. Later in the semester, I will give you more detailed assignments as well as some resources to help you get started. Late papers will not be permitted without a valid, documented excuse.

Response Papers (5 points each): Throughout the semester, you will write four short, 1-2 page, papers in which you will provide a concise, reasoned reaction to a reading or controversy from class. There is no right or wrong answer to these response papers, but strong papers will be thoughtful, well-reasoned reflections. Five assignments will be given throughout the semester so you are allowed to skip one. Papers are due at the beginning of class and no late papers will be permitted. The specific questions will be handed out later in the semester.

Simulation (10 points): During the semester, we will be conducting a one week simulation. You will be assessed on your preparation for and contribution to the simulation. More on this in a future handout.

Participation (20 points): Attendance and participation are important and make up equal parts of this grade. Be sure to come to class prepared to discuss the day’s readings. Every absence after the second will reduce your participation grade by .5 points. Students who arrive late or leave early will be marked absent unless prior approval has been reached with the instructor. Students who expect to miss class because of the observance of a religious holiday will have an opportunity to make up missed work provided that the instructor has been notified in writing regarding the anticipated absence by the last day of late registration. Students who expect to miss class due to an officially sanctioned, UNLV activity (e.g., intercollegiate athletics) must notify the instructor in writing at least 7 days prior to the anticipated absence and provide written verification of participation. The instructor also reserves the write to conduct quizzes.

Attending class will help you succeed in this course, but you will excel further through active participation. Good participation involves contributing to the discussion through providing information from the readings and by sharing ideas related to the application of various concepts we will discuss. The classroom will be an environment in which everyone is treated with respect. Keep interruptions to a minimum. Cell phones and pagers should be turned off, late arrivals and early departures avoided, and no “side-bar” conversations held.

Final Grades: The points for each of these elements totals 100. Translated into letter grades, course grades will be determined by the following: A (93-100); A- (90-93); B+ (87-90); B (83-87); B- (80-83); C+ (77-80); C (73-77); C- (70-73); D+ (67-70); D (63-67); D- (60-63); F (60 and below).
Grading Notes: Incompletes will only be offered when requested in writing on behalf of a student by the Chair of the Department of Political Science or the Dean of the College of Liberal Arts. All grade disputes must be in writing and must be submitted within one week of the assignment or exam being returned to you.

Ordinarily no makeups will be given for missed assignments. However, if extraordinary circumstances require one, then students must do the following in order to qualify: (1) inform the instructor of the problem at some time prior to the exam itself and (2) provide documentation of the problem. All make-up exams will be scheduled immediately upon your return to class.

Extra credit will not be offered.

Academic Misconduct
Academic integrity is a legitimate concern for every member of the campus community; all share in upholding the fundamental values of honesty, trust, respect, fairness, responsibility and professionalism. By choosing to join the UNLV community, students accept the expectations of the Academic Misconduct Policy and are encouraged when faced with choices to always take the ethical path. Students enrolling in UNLV assume the obligation to conduct themselves in a manner compatible with UNLV’s function as an educational institution. For details on the Student Conduct Code, see http://www.unlv.edu/studentlife/judicial/StudentConductCode04.pdf

The instructor reserves the right to have students’ assignments submitted electronically and assessed by plagiarism detection software. The University requires all members of the University Community to be familiar with and to follow copyright and fair use laws. YOU ARE INDIVIDUALLY AND SOLELY RESPONSIBLE FOR VIOLATIONS OF COPYRIGHT AND FAIR USE LAWS. THE UNIVERSITY WILL NEITHER PROTECT NOR DEFEND YOU NOR ASSUME ANY RESPONSIBILITY FOR EMPLOYEE OR STUDENT VIOLATIONS OF FAIR USE LAWS. Violations of copyright laws could subject you to federal and state civil penalties and criminal liability as well as disciplinary action under University policies. To help familiarize yourself with copyright and fair use policies, the University encourages you to visit its copyright page at www.unlv.edu/committees/copyright. Plagiarism of any form will result in a failing grade for the course and the instructor will file a case with the Office of Student Conduct.

Student Accommodation
The UNLV Disability Resource Center (DRC) houses the resources for students with disabilities. If you have a documented disability that may require accommodations, you will need to let me know within the first two weeks of the semester and contact the DRC for the coordination of services. The DRC is located in the Student Services Complex (SSC), Room 137, and the contact numbers are: VOICE (702) 895-0866, TTY (702) 895-0652, FAX (702) 895-0651.
